

ESRC Behaviour Change Seminar Three: Changing alcohol, drug and smoking behaviours

"These seminars provide a fantastic opportunity to hear about the latest research on behaviour change, the challenges faced by researchers and practitioners alike, and to be challenged in the way we plan and implement interventions. Attendance is highly recommended"

Professor Adam Joinson, Professor of Behaviour Change, University of the West of England, Bristol.

You are invited to attend the third in our 'behaviour change' seminar series, entitled 'Changing alcohol, drug and smoking behaviours'. The seminar will feature further debate and discussion from a number of speakers representing a range of stakeholders, including:

- Dr James Nicholls, Director of Research and Policy, Alcohol Research UK
- Dr Nick Sheron, Senior Lecturer and Head of Clinical Hepatology, University of Southampton
- Professor Christine Griffin, Professor of Social Psychology, University of Bath
- Professor Gerard Hastings, Institute for Social Marketing, University of Stirling
- Dr Tom Farrell, Senior Lecturer in Marketing, Oxford Brookes University
- Professor Jim McCambridge, Professor of Addiction and Health Behaviour, University of York

Admission is FREE, but places are limited. Please note that due to the popularity of this event tickets are currently limited to 1 per customer.
