John Dales is a traffic engineer/urban designer and Director of Urban Movement, a company specialising in planning and design for complex urban environments. He's rarely happier than when dealing with the challenges posed by town and city centres, high streets, the public realm around stations, and the pressing need to make urban walking and cycling much more attractive. John is design advisor on streets to several local authorities; writer of a monthly column in Local Transport Today; and a trustee of Living Streets.

Registration: Please email Susan.Levick@uwe.ac.uk to book a place.

Directions: The event will take place in N block near the main entrance foyer of the Frenchay Campus (a downloadable map is available from the link below). Frenchay campus is well served by bus, cycle routes and rail. Two railway stations are within walking distance, Filton Abbey Wood (about 15 minutes) and Bristol Parkway (20 - 25 minutes). If you need a parking space, please indicate when you book.

How to travel to Frenchay, and campus map are available on:
