

Media Summary 6 – 12 September 2014

Coverage

Bristol 24/7 - Bristol basketball stars flying high for pro league debut

Fox News – Could 3D technology revolutionize surveillance

New Scientist – Ethical trap: robot paralysed by choice of who to save

Bristol 24/7 – Frustration bubbling Bristol Bath cycle path

Bath Chronicle – Survey by UWE Bristol shows around half of cyclists and pedestrians anger each other on Bath to Bristol railway path

Bristol Post - Is it time for the Bristol to Bath cycle path to be segregated for cyclists and pedestrians?

Bristol Post – Sporting heros saluted by UWE's Wall of Fame

Silobreaker - Open Bionics 3D printed prosthetic hand reaches global finals of Intel competition

BBC News Online – Robots help people with dementia

Media Appearances

Alex Isaac was interviewed by BBC Radio Bristol Breakfast programme about the new 'Wall of Fame' in the Centre for Sport.

Graham Parkhurst was interviewed by Scott Ellis of BBC Points West about what has happened to hydrogen cars, this was in connection with the hydrogen ferry in Bristol which is currently not in use.

BBC Points West will be reporting from the Welcome Weekend this Saturday capturing the students as they arrive on campus and settle into the accommodation.