

Media Coverage Summary 23 – 31 August 2018

Latest announcements

New research shows why the commute should be counted as part of the working day

Paramedic techniques used during cardiac arrest similarly effective, study shows

Coverage and staff in the media

Air Traffic Management – easyjet to use drones for aircraft checks

ITV West – Time running out for people in Bristol to have their say on 20mph speed zones

New research looking at the use of free Wi-Fi on trains being used by commuters to catch-up on work emails has been widely reported in the media this week. The study by Dr Juliet Jain, Dr Billy Clayton and Dr Caroline Bartle from The Centre for Transport and Society was reported extensively by the BBC including interviews for BBC Points West and regional radio, ITV News, The Independent, Telegraph, Huffington Post and The Metro. A full coverage report is available here.

The findings of the study reported this week about paramedic techniques used during cardiac arrest by Professor Jonathan Bengner (HSC) was reported by Air Med and Rescue, Med Page Today and MedicalXpress

Professor Graham Parkhurst (FBE) was interviewed by BBC Points West about Dyson moving into the electric car industry, to view see iPlayer from 03:30.

Links

See the news archive

E-mail: pressoffice@uwe.ac.uk

Tel: +44 (0)117 32 82208

Follow us

