Library Resources for English Language and Linguistics

Books
Use Library Search on the Library homepage to find print and online books. Many of the print English language and linguistics books are on Level 4 (shelf marks 306 and 400-449).

Journal articles
Use Library Search to find print and online journal articles.

Databases
Access to specialist databases is available from the Linguistics resources subject page: http://www1.uwe.ac.uk/library/yoursubject/englishlanguagelinguistics.aspx
This includes key journals databases such as Linguistics Abstracts Online and Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts. It also contains a link to the Oxford English Dictionary Online, which includes various etymological features such as an historical thesaurus and a timeline of the English language. It identifies the first recorded use of any given word, and the evolution of its meaning over time.

Recommended websites
We have collated links to various freely available websites relevant to Linguistics. These can be found on the English Language/Linguistics subject web page (see link under databases).

Help
You can contact us by using the ‘Ask a Librarian’ link from the library homepage. You can use this form to make an appointment to see one of us individually.

The English Language and Linguistics librarians are:
Sarah Brain – Subject Librarian
Tom Woodman – Subject Support Librarian
Ellen Reed – Subject Support Librarian
Julie Crawley - Subject Support Librarian

TW June 2015
A note about passwords...
Your UWE network username and password will allow you to access most of the resources listed. We strongly advise that you access resources via the Library’s web pages (http://www1.uwe.ac.uk/library/) from wherever you are. In this way, you will be recognised as an official UWE member and should not encounter any access problems. The first time that you login to a resource you will probably be asked to confirm that you are a UWE member.